Hello Tony,

When we came home we ran into a week of real challenge. I witnessed courage beyond all that I could ever muster as I watched our friend Mary, pass away. I felt such shame, guilt, anger all wrapped up in a fresh sense of inspired determination. I felt shame at sometimes complaining about the small things in my life. I felt guilt at not always using my talents or seizing opportunities that I should, dithering or becoming distracted – what is the worst that could happen if it goes wrong? Anger – all those bigots, racists and xenophobes, the child molesters, the thieves and the drug dealers who contribute nothing positively to the lives of others – they deserve to take her place. However, what an inspiration she was. When dying was all that was left she faced it squarely, and found time to give a word of encouragement before fading away.

CELEBRATE: Library manager Sheila Croft shows the cake to Richard Hammer, who grew up on the estate

Shelf improvement

WHEN he was a lad, Richard Hammer went to Berinsfield Library every day to do his homework.

And so who better than the London-based film producer to return to cut the library's 25th birthday cake?

Manager Sheila Croft said: "When he's back in this area he always pops in to see us."

"He says he's sure we put him on the right track all those years ago and encourages everyone to use libraries."

Every visitor to the library got a piece of cake – provided by the local bakery, Mr Crusty, and a glass of wine. "We wanted to mark an important anniversary, and it turned out to be a very pleasant day," said Mrs Croft.

This 52 year old Mother and grandmother, who served her family, loved hugely, danced and laughed loudly – was gracious at the end of her journey. I hope to have that kind of courage at the end but I'm inspired today to live my life to its full measure and let no man diminish that effort.

Seven lied – it's not a case of no smoke without fire. She lied and you continue to support her. There's no wriggle room Tony, no analytic semantics, no " She was treated badly" she just flat out lied. I owe it to Mary and Sheila ( see attached) to be who I am and ignore those who make a positive contribution to nobody's lives.

You cannot be a disciple of anything until you can discern what's true. I am not sure where you get your info about me from, but if you have found out what I did in the military you would understand that if I meant Seven any harm, she wouldn't be around 12 years later to tell the stories she does. You also will learn of my first career – I certainly would have had no difficulty handling Miss Pahne in a word fight – Yes I was a Lawyer Tony. Now if you really wanted to stitch a story together those two juicy titbits would have flavoured the pot. However, as I have always said. Its about Seven ., not the truth. I had four more web sites write to me telling me that they debunked Seven years ago. The interesting spin this time is they believe that the two of you work for the Government...well fancy that! Listen out for Ricki...my show is up for an award by the way.

Amazing how kind people are when you offer something authentic...
Richard
