Okay. Understood. Thank you. I suppose I was not really getting at that. Perhaps I have not explained myself that well.

What I meant to relay was all about not bearing false witness, as stated in the ninth commandment. But I suppose to me, that is the equivalent of going back to first principles, exactly as you say. If you are correct therefore in what you say, how would I have not have broken the ninth commandment? Not breaking God's Law, that is not breaking any of the ten commandments, is personally important to me and that's got to be my first principle. Would you not agree?
