Dear Bishop Jones,

Good evening and good wishes to you.

The latest JAHTALK article, as published only yesterday, was written specifically for the well-known barrister Michael Mansfield QC, whom you will be well aware represented some of the families at the Hillsborough Inquests. We thought the article, with its fourteen questions addressed directly to Michael, may be of some considerable interest and relevance to your ongoing work too, both with respect to Hillsborough, and also with respect to your role within the Anglican Church. If nothing else, I urge you to reflect on the same fourteen questions.

If you decide to view the article, and sincerely, I hope you will, then you will see that it further highlights the work of JAH, and it also touches strategically on what is happening to the long-suffering families, who like many others, continue to experience further injustice at the hands of the police-state UK.

I wish to take this opportunity to remind you that Crown Prince Michael, JAH, or perhaps in more familiar terms to you, Christ in His Second Coming, has already offered to help you and all the families. In my last email to you, dated 26th April 2017, I signposted to you The White Stone of Revelation 2:17. That was for your benefit, not mine. If you have followed the advice and if you have actually read The Way home or face The Fire, then all you personally need to do now is ask JAH for help. He wants to meet with you.

If you have not yet read The Way home or face The Fire, for whatever reason, then I would urge you to do so.

Since I started to write in an attempt to help you, I have also written politely to Pete Wilcox, Paul Bayes and Malcolm McMahon.

Pete Wilcox -

Disappointingly, so far at least, not one of them have shown me so much as the courtesy of any kind of reply or acknowledgement. For that reason, I have taken the decision to copy them into this email, so that perhaps collectively, you can all consider JAH's kind offer to help the families of the 96 gain true justice and everlasting peace.

The British Nation as a whole needs to gain true knowledge of its real identity, which churches of all denominations, have historically purposely helped to hide.

Time is running out for you and your churches to make amends for their repeated sins throughout the ages. Please take heed of this friendly message.

Peace be within you and upon you.
